Forward

In 1996, the West Virginia State Legislature enacted the Neighborhood Investment Program (NIP). It was the intent of the legislature that this act "encourage private sector businesses and individuals to contribute capital to community-based organizations which establish projects to assist neighborhoods and local communities." The Neighborhood Investment Program has proven in its thirteen years of existence to be a significant force in encouraging businesses and individuals to contribute to their local non-profit organizations. The NIP encourages community development by providing the incentive many businesses and individuals need to get involved in their local organizations. By working to build these relationships, the NIP helps to increase the capacity of our communities to support specific projects that serve our most economically disadvantaged citizens
